Y-cluster reductions are reductions of clusters ending with the palatal approximant /j/, which is the sound of y in yes, and is sometimes referred to as "yod", from the Hebrew letter yod(h), which has the sound [j]. Many such clusters arose in dialects in which the falling diphthong /ɪu/ (the product of the merger of several Middle English vowel sequences) became the rising diphthong /ju:/.

I think this is a good way to learn history because it is easier to understand the overall idea of the certain historical event. Learning via that almost happens without noticing and it can also bring us new point of views about a historical event, which can otherwise be a little difficult to understand it in its entirety as it happened many hundreds years ago.
