I, on the other hand, may do a wee jig. Even my plan didn't fail this miserably. Walking away, he punches keys on his ever-present phone. "I am not enduring a temp. Ms. Baker is the best I have ever had." Suddenly, I'm fine if we're not talking about work anymore. 1:15 p.m. * Location: Hotel front desk.

The Plan <— Fan-freakin-tastic!! It was almost everything I was in the mood for, especially that "hard-to-get" guy that was finally NOT doing the chasing. Ahhhhh how I love a book where the girl has been pining for awhile (in this case, almost a year) and where the guy shows absolutely no interest.

So many times I will read a story and can't figure out why it takes the heroine so long to fall in love with the guy; if he is supposedly so perfect then what's all the angst and waffling for, you know. In The Plan the reader falls in love along with the main character during the story; you get to peel back the layers of Alaric with Emma.

The Plan is told from Emma's POV, in a form that very much resembles Bridget Jones' Diary. The book is filled with hilarious jokes, (sometimes self-deprecating) sarcasm and humour in general as we follow through Emma's journey with Canon, catering his every needs and refraining from touching his ever-loving buns.

Everyone knows it. Everyone stays away. Everyone who can, that is. Except Emma. She can't look away. Alaric Canon is the single most attractive man she's ever seen. Bar none. Canon has never noticed her. Not once in almost a year. She's not even a blip on his radar. But she will be. His radar will be bliplless no more. It is a goal. Emma has a plan
